When some people hear the word transgender, it is often mixed up with cross-dresser (transvestite). The difference between transgenders and transestite is that transvestites ~~of cross-dresser~~, dress as the oposite gender for fun, comfort or a way to express their personal style, not because they feel like they are stuck in the wrong <sup>body:</sup> transgenders shouldn't be looked at different just because they are different, <sup>Oct's</sup> first of all they are humans too they are just like us, they can't change what they feel and who they want to be, and not many people understand what they are are going through.

First off, transgenders shouldn't be judged differently because they are different from us. Most people get the wrong idea when they hear the word transgender, people assume they are freaks without really understanding the term Gender Dysphoria - <sup>needed to explain</sup> (transgender). Transgenders are just like us because the only difference between is that they don't feel comfortable in their own skin, they feel as if they have been born in the wrong body and that god made a mistake. People often assume they know what Gender Dysphoria is, no one really understands gender dysphori <sup>you haven't really explained your ROF.</sup>

The second reason as the why trasgenders shouldn't be looked at differently <sup>is</sup> because they can't change what they feel. What most people think when the word transgender comes up is that it is a choice, and they can choose whether they feel this <sup>urg</sup> to be the other gender. <sup>if</sup> they are wrong. Gender Dysphoria doesn't happened because someone chooses, it all happenes in the head, I am not stateing that it is a mental disorder, because it isn't. Gender Dyphoria is a mental aguish, people shouldn't judge people just because they feel a certain way, they can't help what they are feeling. Some parents who aren't as supportive try to change them or won't allow them to be who they are because they think it is a choice. It isn't and that people should have abetter understanding of what is transgender before judging them. <sup>where are your quotes? in dance?</sup>

My third reason is that not many people understand what they are going through, and how hard it is to feel different from everyone else and to be judged. I think that society should be more educated in the this topic, so people can have a better understanding of what Gender Dysphoria is, <sup>Oct's</sup> one of the main reason as to why people judge trasngenders is because aren't portrayed in a lot of movies or tv shows in a positive way and there aren't a lot of <sup>Oct's</sup> tv shows or movies that have peoople with Gender Dysphoria, due to the lack of transgenders in tv shows and tv, the public isn't doesn't

When some people hear the word transgender, <sup>it</sup> they think words such as freaks, disgusting, dead etc. The main reason as to why people think these things is because of religious belief or because they don't fully understand <sup>what transgender really is.</sup> It actually has been proven that <sup>about</sup> 8-11% of people really know someone who is transgender. ~~Transgender~~ is often mixed up with cross-dresser (transvestite). The difference between transgenders and transvestite is that transvestites or cross-dresser, dress as the opposite gender for fun, <sup>comfort</sup> ~~enjoy~~ or a way to express their personal style, not because they feel like they are stuck in the wrong body. Transgenders shouldn't be looked at different just because they are different, first of all they are humans too, they are just like us, they can't change what they feel and who they want to be, and not many people understand they are going through. <sup>what</sup>

Firstly transgenders are just like us. Most people get the wrong idea when they hear the word transgender, people assume they are freaks without really understanding the term Gender Dysphoria (transgender), people just know that they feel like they are stuck in the opposite →? genders body, that isn't enough information for someone to judge other people. Transgenders are just like us because the only difference between us and people who are transgender is that they don't feel comfortable in their own skin, they feel as if they have been born in the wrong body and that god made a mistake. According to a little girl who was once a boy "They think I am weird and that I shouldn't have the same rights as them just because of what's between my leg"-Jazz. They are just like us they do everything we do, and they aren't disgusting human beings because they are just like everyone else who is living on this planet.

The second reason as to why transgenders shouldn't be looked at differently because they can't change what they feel. What most people think when the word transgender comes up is that it is a choice, and they can choose whether they feel this ~~way~~ to be the other gender, they are wrong. Gender Dysphoria doesn't happen because someone chooses, it all happens in the head, I am not stating that it is a mental disorder, because it isn't. Gender Dysphoria is a mental anguish, people shouldn't judge people just because they feel a certain way, they can't help what they are feeling.

My third reason is that not many people understand them, it has been proven that about 8-11% of the people really know someone who is transgender, and most people don't understand what they are going through and how hard it is for them to cope with this, also transgenders aren't portrayed in a lot of the movies or tv shows in a positive way and it isn't really shown on tv. Most the time people just assume that they are freaks, that they are weird, and that they aren't human that they are wrong they are just like us and I think that people should know more about them before they judge them.

change: when some people hear the words transgender...

When some hears the word transgender is is often mixed up with cross-dressor (transvestite). Most people get confused because some transgenders don't change their physical apperance but they do dress as the opposite gender, whereas cross-dressor(transvestite) dress as the opposite gender for different reason, it could be for fun, comfort, or a way to express their personal style, not becuae they see them self as the other gender. There has been many cases where someone feels like they are stuck in the wrong body when they are young, but trasngender don't always start when they are, trasngender can start when kids reach puberty or evel later. From hearing all these facts about Gender Dysphoria some people might think they are freaks, they arn't. Transgenders shoulnd't be looke at different just because they are different, first of all they are humans too they are just like us, they can't change what they feel and who they want to be, and not many people understand they are are going throuhg.

First off transgenrs ar just like us. Most people get the wrong idea when they hear the word transgender, people assume they are freaks without reallying knowing them. Transgenders are just like us because the nly difference between us and the people who are trasnger is the awe feel comfortable in our own skin while they don't, they feel as if they have been born in the wrong body, many of the transgender kids feel confused and emtionally conflicted. What people don't understnad is that they do everything we do, they go out and play, they make friends they watch television just like what every normal kid doesn't. Also when a transgender kids goes through puvber they go through a lot more durng puer than normals so people should just let them be who they want to be, we have no right to judge other people. It is obiously clear that people are trasnger are just like us.

Strong persuasive language?

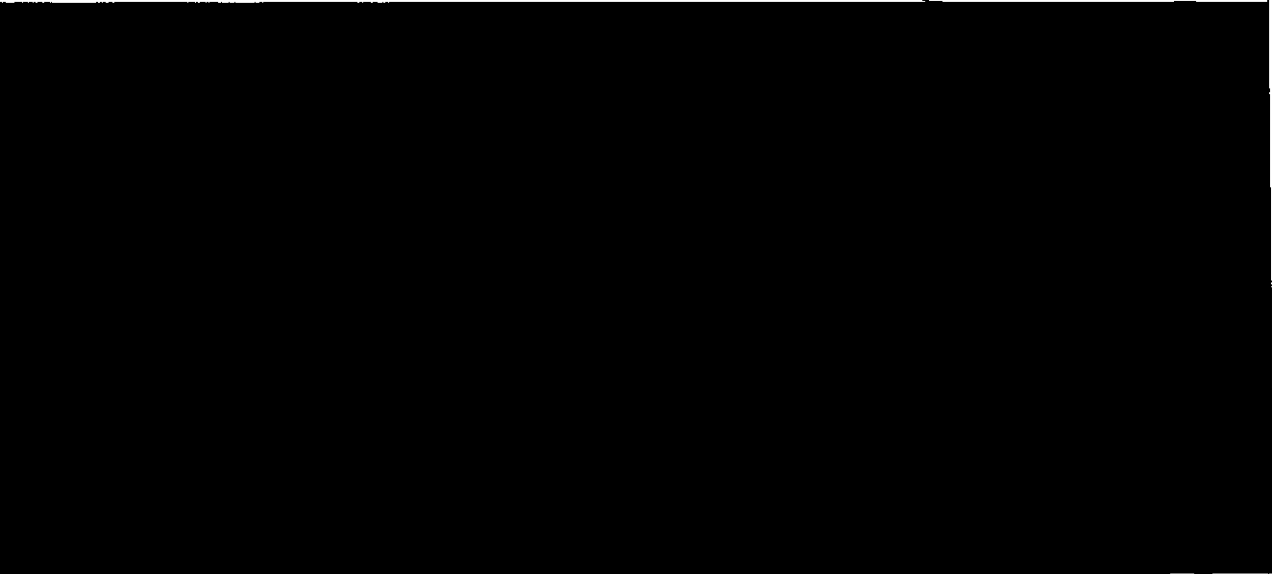

The sconfd reason as the hy trasngenders shouldn't be looked at differently because they can't change what they feel. What most people think when they hear the word transgender is that it is a mental disorder , it isn't, it is a mental anguish, people think that parenst can preve a fhile to feel ike the oposite gender, but that is where they are wrong. Parents can't stop them from feeling what they feel, and fby forcing these kids it amakes the confsued with who they are and osmetimes can lea a kids to suicide. A little boy changed from a boy to a girl called Jazz said "They think that I am wierd and that I shouldn't have the same rights as the mjust because of what's between my leg" her family has been supporting her through all of what she is going through, both her

Paragraph 1

Evidence? Statistics to back up your opinions?

TRANSITION: First off I would like to talk about...

RDF: People who are transgender and humans too and are just like us.

EVIDENCE/EXAMPLES/DATA/EXPERIENCE/EXPLANATION/ELABORATION

- *The only difference between us and people who are transgender is that we feel comfortable in our own body while they don't, they feel as if they have been born in the wrong body. When someone is transgender they often feel confused or emotionally conflicted.
- *Most people think that people who are transgender are freaks, they aren't they do everything we do, go out and play, make friends, watch tv etc.
- *When people talk about them and say mean things they have feelings too and can get hurt, they go through a lot more during puberty and normal teens, so people should back off and let them be who they are.

It is obviously clear that...

Transition Sentence

As you can see people who are transgender are just like us.

Paragraph 2

Need stronger persuasive language

TRANSITION: The second reason as to why Transgenders shouldn't be looked differently is because...

RDF: They can't change what they feel.

EVIDENCE/EXAMPLES/DATA/EXPERIENCE/EXPLANATION/ELABORATION

- *Gender Dysphoria or most commonly known as Transgender is sort of a mental state. It isn't a mental disorder but a mental anguish; they are often confused and emotionally conflicted with that they feel.
- *Both children and adult has to be with GD (Gender Dysphoria) must continue for six month to be diagnosis
- *Most of the time people think that parents can prevent a child to feel like the opposite gender, but they are wrong. Parents can't stop them from feeling what they feel, and by forcing them especially kids it makes them confused with who they are, because they may feel like the opposite gender but they have the body the the gender they are born with.

Transition Sentence

For the reasons above someone who is Transgender can not change what they feel.

Paragraph 3

TRANSITION: My third reason is...

RDF: Not many people understand.

EVIDENCE/EXAMPLES/DATA/EXPERIENCE/EXPLANATION/ELABORATION

- *I know that most people think that Transgenders are freaks, but most of the time people feel that is
