

foreshadowing

Foreshadowing p 54
Johnny will ~~kill~~ the next person that bumps him

Foreshadowing
A bad feeling that something will happen

Foreshadowing
Cherry the spy, what will happen? Why did she become a spy

Foreshadowing
Ponyboy was home to stay

"I hate people with green eyes" but I think Pony likes Cherry, but she has green eyes. Will his opinion change? p130

Why do authors use foreshadowing?
When authors write, they want you to be intrigued and keep reading the book. They want you to ask questions

Definition:
verb, to show or indicate beforehand;
prefigure
- Dictionary.com

Eyes + Individual Identity + the way the author describes things: colour

Eyes, green Eyes glittering like ice
p6 Similie + eyes p142

Green eyes
Paul Newman? p1
illusion
China-blue eyes
Bright-eyed p15

eyes growed
s' proud of him

ears get red = embarrassed
showing not telling

Socs = warm colours
greasers = cool colours
the way she describes things is quite categorized

dancing grey eyes
p32

like the eyes of an animal Similie p54

big black eyes
p57 When I think of big eyes I think of curious and confused

black eyes widened
p120 widened?
confused? scared?

Johnny's fearful eyes
p123

Cars + Gap between rich and poor

Cars, theme? p4
Symbol for toughness of socs (Mustangs)
gap between rich and poor Mustang, you know it's a soc
p54 as long as the person/people are in mustangs

Dright, tuff
car for socs
127

Definition:
recurring structures and devices that can help towards developing themes

Definition:
a unifying or dominant idea, motif, etc.,
- dictionary.com

Why do authors use motifs?
Repetition can add a symbolic value to a originally simple boring, description.
Motifs can be used to identify a theme

Why do authors use motifs? themes?
Themes shape the core of a story. Themes can overall, affect the story-line and the development of characters.