

The Numbers Game

It's all a numbers game that doesn't end,
A labyrinth filled with cycles of struggle and gain;
Just fight tooth and nail for the right dividend.

There is no problem that money can't mend,
Yet any amount can make you insane;
It's all a numbers game that doesn't end.

But there's no game to be won, no throne to ascend,
A few get the sunshine, the rest brawl in rain;
Just fight tooth and nail for the right dividend.

It poisons and controls those you deem a friend,
Who would trade you in for expensive champagne;
It's all a numbers game that doesn't end.

While we lose ourselves over the latest trend,
The world is on fire and the earth in great pain;
Just fight tooth and nail for the right dividend.

How mere digits can make us overextend,
I'm surprised to find that I cannot explain.
As a cog in the machine I do so contend,
It's all a numbers game that doesn't end.
